

Claims

Printed self illuminating color pixel circuit is printed micro wiring made into a circuit.

This printed circuit is in essence a printed "High Definition Television" screen. The firing mechanisms replacing ions cannons have already been established as well as the high carbon filament ink.

Printing pixels in this form either on a hard or flexible surface such as plastic or paper will make most forms of displays especially "High Definition Television so inexpensive making televisions available for the total population anywhere in the world.